Knox was found on the floor in the front room with his wife in his arms, both bodies being burned to a crisp. A few feet away was an unrecognisable mass supposed to be the remains of the oldest child, a boy three years oid. Of the baby nine months old there was no trace, and it is supposed that the baby was completely consumed.

From the position of the bodies it is thought Mrs. Knox, who was an invalid, had over-turned a lamp and all were overcome by the flames before she could reach them. The family were: Frank Knox, aged 23; Susan Whitman Knox, aged 22; George Knox, aged 3; Frank Albert Knox, aged 9 months.

A later dispatch says: Frank Knox was he had been saving to make some paynever owned one. These two facts lead to a suspicion that murder was committed to a suspicion that murder was committed for the sake of robbery, and the building then fired to cover up the crime. The position in which the sakes of the family were lying, would seem to oppose this supposition. However, nothing definite is yet known, everything about the house having been completely consumed. The hody of the baby was not at first found, and it was thought that the finmes had entirely devoured it. Later the searchers found the crumbling ashes of what had been the youngest child. The Coroner's jury met and adjourned till later in the week.

THIEVES CAUGHT.

A Novel Scheme to Get Flunder—The Gaug Tripped Up. NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—A gang of express thieves has recently raided Boston with considerable success. It was a regularly rganized band, with a system that workmoment unattended the thieves would moment unattended the thieves would jump in, drive it away quickly by a circuitous route to the suburban hiding place. There what was worth having of the load was unloaded, and the rig, with the rest, turned adrift. Next day the police would come upon team and wagon somewhere, with the most valuable part of its contents gone.

In this manner, on the night of November 25th last, an express wagon of Dart & Co., of Boston, was stolen and robbed. The police arrested two thieves and traced them to their den, but it was empty. The stolen tranks had been there, but the man in charge had gone away with them.

The Boston police telegraphed here and detectives were put on the case. On Saturday they traced trunks that had come urday they traced trunks that had come from Boston by way of the Grand Central depot to a house in Rivington street. Watching the house they saw a thief named Henry Hoffman come out. They arrested him and locked him up. A search of the room revealed a lot of stolen goods and Hoffman had on him a lot of pawn tickets representing other stolen goods. When he found that he was fairly cornered he gave up and helped the police. He consented to go to Boston without requisition. Monday a representative from the express company came here and identified the stolen articles. Hoffman was taken to Boston yesterday with all the stolen property.

"My intention," he said. "was merely to aid in enforcing what O'Donnell told us was the law against the Chinese. He told us that the State Constitution prohibited the Chinese from living within the limits of any incorporated town or city in the State.

and I believed the municipal authorities would be compelled to order-them to leave the city. The only thing that troubled me, was that O'Donnel was always letting on that the Chinese were supplied with superior arms; that they had armies in Chinatown, and were drilling every night with Winchester rifles, supplied to them by Colonel Bee, the Chinese Consul, EXPERIMENTS IN DYNAMITS.

"Most of our people were workingmen and had no arms. I was afraid that when the Chinese were ordered to go they would regist and attack our people. I resolved to experiment and see if I could not invent a consultance on the more prosperous, production not increased, nor was wealth increased and the nations were no better off."

Prefect. Lenin Ellendi, on his second visit to the Prefect declared to the latter that the Sultan was well disposed towards the Bulgarians, and wished to improve their situation; further that the Turkish Commissioner who was to follow him would simply be charged with investigating the state of affairs, only administering the province for two or three months, after which, in all probability the Sultan would agree to the personal union under Prince Alexander.

The Prefect replied that he was without authority to discuss such matters and that they should endeavor to treat directly with Prince Alexander. The Prefect am inilitary authorities had much difficulty in restraining the population. From all the districts it was reported that the people were cager to go to Philippopolis and expel the delegates. It is feared that the above solution, as proposed by the Turkish delegates. solution, as proposed by the Turkish delegates, emanated from Russia, and that during the three months of Turkish administration that power would be incessantly intriguing for the overthrow of Prince Alexander.
